THE LIGHTEST STORE—GEO. M. SNOOK & CO.

The Lightest Store in Town To-day!

Our recent improvements to buildings have admitted a flood of light. Light, brilliant as noontide, at Main and Market street ends. Light, in unshadowed volume streams in through the many sky openings, illuminating the entire length of our 364 feet of storeroom.

People with dimness of vision and others with vision unimpaired, tell us what a delight it is to purchase goods in this lightest of light stores—tell us for example that buying BLACK GOODS under such a magnificent light is no longer a task but a pleasure.

A Supposed Forger Arrested.

Yesterday Chief of Police Bennett went over to Bridgeport and arrested the man who is supposed to have forged the check which a colored man attempted to pass on a saloon-keeper there a few days ago. He was locked up for a hearing.

A Stag Social by the Elks.

The regular meeting of Wheeling Lodge of Elks will be held this evening, on which occasion several new members will be initiated. After the business session a stag social will be given by the lodge at M. Hearne's place, on Twelfth street. A number of local and visiting Elks will be present and a good time is anticipated by the members. The affair is in charge of a committee composed of Messrs. M. G. Warner and Charles C. Schmidt.

Episcopal Ministers' Convocation.

The convocation of the Episcopal ministers of North Western, West Virginia, opened at Moundsville yesterday. About a dozen ministers gathered, and were formally welcomed by Rev. G. W. Grimes, of the M. E. church. Rev. Dr. Swope, of Wheeling, responded. Rev. C. C. Pearson delivered an appropriate opening sermon, and Dr. Swope preached last night. Among the ministers present are Rev. Dr. Swope of Wheeling; Rev. J. Brittingham, of Wheeling; Rev. Dee H. Young, of Wheeling; Rev. W. H. Burkhardt, of Weston; Rev. C. C. Pearson, of Morgantown; Rev. R. U. Brooking, of New Martinsville; Rev. W. L. Davis, of Parkersburg; Rev. A. K. Featon, of Parkersburg; Bishop Peterkin, of Parkersburg; Rev. J. F. Woods and Rev. B. M. Opun, of Moundsville.

An Attractive Excursion in August.

One of the most beautiful itineraries ever gotten up by any society has been prepared by Traveling Passenger Agent O. R. Wood and the committee on transportation for the Knights Templar pilgrimage to the triennial convocation in Boston in August. It is certainly a handsome production and reflects great credit on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railway, which road issues the book and which road has the contract for transporting the knights.

No finer trip was ever projected out of Wheeling, and all who contemplate a trip this summer should by all means get a copy of this artistic itinerary from the committee. The diagrams of the sleepers are now in the hands of the knights' committee and space is being checked off rapidly.

Ex-Governor Wickliffe Dead.

Ex-Governor R. C. Wickliffe, whose recent death in Louisiana was announced, was the grandfather of Mrs. Lieut. W. C. P. Muir, now stationed here. The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: In the death of R. C. Wickliffe, Louisiana has lost one of those grand figures which must always stand out prominently in the perspective of the state's history. He was one of the few remaining links which connect the moral and the intellectual of the half-forgotten past with their like in the present. Made of that sturdy material which always characterizes the true statesman and patriot, it was his lot to serve the state as governor when no mere politician could have been equal to the task. He was called upon to save the state from falling into the hands of that narrow-minded, and yet powerful organization, the "Know-Nothings," and so fearlessly and ably did he discharge the task laid upon him by his brother Democrats that the triumph of his party was complete, lasting and far-reaching. He was a staunch Democrat, first, last and always; but he never permitted his political preferences for one moment to dim his keen moral vision nor to warp his uncompromising sense of justice. His aim was to serve his country through his party, but never to make the best interests of his state or his country subservient to mere party ends.

Gov. Wickliffe was descended from one of the best old Kentucky families, and it may be mentioned as a striking coincidence that at the time of his service as Governor of Louisiana before the war, his father, Charles A. Wickliffe, was governor of Kentucky.

A REAL "WEARY WILLY"

And Companion Piece for His Comrade "Dusty Roads"

QUEERS THE POLICE DEPARTMENT

By Having Himself Arrested After He Had Been Driven Out of the Headquarters—He Wanted the City to Furnish Him Board and Clothes. In the Cell he Tears up his Raiment and is Given a Dousing With a Hose Stream, But His Spirit is Still Undaunted.

The office force at police headquarters had a peculiar experience yesterday with a member of the tramp fraternity, who was a veritable type of the "Weary Willy" class. He blew into the headquarters yesterday morning, dirty and ragged, and said his name was Mike Luney, and that he hailed from Buffalo. He wanted to be put behind the bars for the sole reason that he was hungry, and wanted to be in a position where he could be fed and his personal comforts attended to without any expense to himself. His blood became richer as he spoke, remarking that he would also want a new suit of clothes. He spoke as one who had been used to opulence, and whose lines had fallen in hard places of late; he had been doing nothing and proposed to continue in that arduous occupation, with Nothing to breathe but air.

And nothing to comb but hair.

Captain Bennett did not propose to encourage Mike in his habits of easy luxury, and refused to humor him in his dream of a square meal and a renewed wardrobe, driving him out of the office. Mike wasn't at all discouraged, and wandering over on the South Side in the afternoon Officer Wolf ran him in as a suspicious character. When he was brought to the station his face wore a broad grin. "Well, you got me now, and you have got to keep me. See," he remarked when he was put in a cell. He was not there long until he had shed his trousers and torn them into rags, treating his shirt in the same manner. It was then that Lieutenant Clements threatened to turn the hose on him. "Let her go," he exclaimed; and the lieutenant did let her go. He said he didn't mind the drenching only it had wet his tobacco and matches. He told the officer as soon as he had a nap he would tear up his coat; for the present he wanted it for a pillow.

It is difficult to see how the mayor can get rid of him this morning without granting one his request. He can't turn him loose on the streets as a living picture, and if he sends to the workhouse he will enjoy three good meals a day. He is an able-bodied young man, and if the police can see their way to get rid of him they will do it.
